Report

As part of the social responsibility awareness programme, sister Chippy Varghese of PG department of commerce of our college shared real life experience, she also focussed on the need for sustaining the social responsibility activities. Sustainable development discussions often focus on environmental, economic, and climate-related topics. All three dimensions of ESG--environmental, social, and governance--are important elements of sustainable development and should be addressed from grass root levels of education. The programme was followed by cleaning activities by volunteers and students of our college.
